Background & Purpose of the Summer Academy on OSCE

Discussing the OSCE and the challenges of rebuilding security in Europe are more relevant than ever.

The Summer Academy on OSCE in Stadtschlaining is a 24-year tradition (since 1997). It has trained a generation of diplomats, OSCE field staff and other practitioners in understanding the Helsinki Process and the OSCE, its methods of work and its relevance in preventing and dealing with security threats in Europe. In the process, the Academy has stimulated debate on the OSCE and its work and developed a network of practitioners who have shared the unique Schlaining experience and have retained their interest in the organization.

The war in Ukraine has destroyed the pan-European security order, and created an existential crisis for the OSCE and, more broadly, the idea of cooperative security. Therefore, discussing the OSCE and the challenges of rebuilding security in Europe are more relevant than ever.

After a four-year hiatus because of COVID-19, the war in Ukraine et al., the Summer Academy on the OSCE at the renamed and renovated Austrian Peace Centre will take part in the autumn of 2024.

The executive-level course has adapted to changing circumstances, thus:

- The course will move from the spring to the autumn to support the in-coming Chair for 2025.
- The course will provide a more focused and cost-effective program.
- There will be less of a focus on the OSCE and its executive structure and a greater focus on how to address security threats and challenges in Europe, and developing the skills to anticipate emerging threats, facilitate dialogue, and manage relations in a highly polarized security environment.
